$150,000 DWELLING SALE

Buyer Found for Fine East Side House-Apartment Buyers Named.

Large and small transactions throughout the city gave yesterday's real estate market an unusually active tone for this season of the year. In the downtown district the purchase of another property by the Western Union Teleproperty by the Western Union Telegraph Company adjoining its present holdings on Broadway and the sale by side of Broadway from Dey to Fulton street except for the immediate Fulton x96.10 occupied by Benedict the jeweller. In other words the company now owns its large new structure at the northwest corner of Broadway and Deystreet, the adjoining building at 201 Broadway occupied by Forsythe, the Mail and Express Building at 203 Broadway with an extension to 164 and 168 Fulton street, and 205 Broadway, the building occupied by Hanan's shoe store. This latter property is the one purchased yesterday. It is a four story and basement structure occupying a lot 16.9x100. This property was sold to the Western Union through the Jouglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company by William street corner, a little building on lot 17.2 Union through the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company by William Mine, trustee of the estate of Mrs. Grace T. Gray, widow of Judge John Clinton Gray. It is assessed by the city for $275,000, which is about the price paid. Having recently purchased 20 and 22 Dey street and already controlling 170 Fulton streets on which a section of the new building stands, the Western Union owns all of the block bounded by Broadway, Church, Fulton and Dey streets except the Fulton street corner, the Church and Dey street corner, the New York Law School Building and four lots to the west of that buildand four lots to the west of that build-ing including the Church street corner. F. H. Bethell, vice-president, announced that no plans for the improvement of the recently acquired property have been

Real estate interests did not see fit to

Real estate interests did not see fit to go into competition with the Equitable Life Assurance Society yesterday for ownership of the Smith Building at 3 to 7 Wail street and 84 Broadway, and as a result the Equitable, as plaintiff in fore-closura proceedings, bid in the property on a single offering of $1.575,000. The Equitable's claim of principal and interest due amounted to $1,452,388. Only a few years ago when the Bankers Trust Company was a tenant and the structure was filled with well known firms the property was valued at $3,000,000. It was then that the mortgage £r nearly property was valued at $3,000,000. It was then that the mortgage for nearly a million and a half was placed on the property, a mortgage so great that Columbia University and St. Luke's Hospital refused to take the property as a legacy under the will of the late William Wheeler Smith, who erected the structure. Since the old banker, lawyer and broker tenants yeared the build. and broker tenants vacated the build-ing it has not paid well. Herbert A. Sherman sold the property as auctioneer. The Equitable probably will remixed the structure, adding a direct entrance to the Wall street subway station.

Princess Bay Weakfish Scattered.

"No fisherman angling for weakfish in Princess Bay," said C. W. Evans of Princess Bay, "said C. W. Evans of Princess Bay last night, "is coming in skunked." Every man is bringing in 2 or 3 and one party this morning brought in 7. Commodore Vet of Rahway this morning took five. Tuesday's largest catch was 15 weakfish.

"The fish are scattered all over the bay, however, and until they school there is no hope of catching a large mess. The fishermen are just simply 'holding their heads above water' until the continued warm weather brings the scattered fish together. "Over at Morgan's there was brought to Seldler's Beach on the New Jersey coast in the nets the largest catch of weakfish ever taken in the history of those waters, so I am told. "Sharks have been bothering fishermen in Princess Bay, and since they ripped the selnes fishermen have been hunting sharks with regulation tackle, but so far have not induced any to take the hook."

Salmon Fishing Fine Exercise.

The river is a delightful place to fish, as there are no snags, logs or sunken brush. It is a "clean" river. At first it was a bit thresome and awkward to cast with a heavy rod and I had to pass the rod to my guide at frequent intervals and rest up. But each day I felt my muscles grow stronger and myself more at ease with the rod, as the original soreness in shoulders and bleeps wore off and I forced myself to practice alternately with right and left arm to rest either one. It is mishty good exercise, this salmon fishing, because one is on the move most all the time and the upper body is working as well. There are half a dozen other sports here besides ourselves, most of them past middle age and all have been here before, some many times.

One man has 19 salmon to his credit in ten days. He "killed" two weighing 25 pounds apiece in one forencon. Then they stopped rising. Another got three in one day.

To-day six or seven rods, casting all day, got but one ten pounder between them. I did not have a single rise, much less a "strike." But they tell me I am casting very well indeed for a green hand and that I am sure to get my quota in time. HUNTINGTON
